

The papers that are included in this special double issue of Canada Watch were originally presented at the conference "Canada–U.S. Relations at the Dawn of the New Millennium: Convergence or Divergence?" The conference was held at York University on May 12, 2000 and chaired by Daniel Drache and Patrick Monahan.

For the following publications, visit the Robarts Centre for Canadian Studies Web site at www.robarts.yorku.ca

Theatre and Transformation in Contemporary Canada
by Robert Wallace

Where Is Here? Canadian Cultural Policy in a Globalized World
by Joyce Zemans

Defining Aboriginal Title in the '90s: Has the Supreme Court Finally Got It Right?
by Kent McNeil

English Canada and Quebec: Avoiding the Issue
by Kenneth McRoberts

The Re-Constitution of the Public Domain
by Harry W. Arthurs

Avoiding the Tragedy of the Commons: Greening Governance Through the Market or in the Public Domain?
by Keith Stewart

Justice Unbound? Globalization, States and the Transformation of the Social Bond
by Richard Devetak & Richard Higgott

Human Security: The Newest Public Good in the Global Era
by Kyle Grayson

*The End of Offshore?
Regaining Public Control of Finance and Taxation in the Era of Globalization*
by Sol Picciotto

The Public Good Versus Private Interests in the Global Monetary and Financial System
by Geoffrey R.D. Underhill

The Hollowing Out of Corporate Canada?
by Harry W. Arthurs

The Income Distribution Threat in Latin America
by Albert Berry

Globalization and Marginalization
by Albert Berry

In Search of North America—Wuz Up? The Political Economy of Space and Identity When Borders Seemingly No Longer Matter
by Daniel Drache

What I Learned at the World Economic Crisis
by Joseph Stiglitz